THE GENEALOGIST'S GUIDE

BEING A GENERAL SEARCH

THROUGH
GENEALOGICAL, TOPOGRAPHICAL, AND BIOGRAPHICAL WORKS, FAMILY HISTORIES, PEERAGE CLAIMS, ETC.

BY
GEORGE W. MARSHALL, LL.D.,
OF THE MIDDLE TEMPLE, BARRISTER-AT-LAW.

SECOND EDITION.

'Enquire, I pray thee, of the former age, and prepare thyself to the search of their fathers.'
Job viii. 8.

It is asserted after much reflection, that there is scarcely an important fact in the annals of this country but either had its origin or became intimately involved in a point of Genealogy.—Sir Harris Nicolas, in 'Memoir of A. Vincent,' p. 4.

PREFACE.

THE preface being usually disregarded by the majority of readers, I have ventured to give those who may consult this book the foregoing necessary advice. No dictionary can be profitably used, or its author fairly judged, unless the plan upon which it is compiled be first comprehended. The following pages will, I hope, serve to make my method clear, and render my book easy to be understood.

In compiling a catalogue of this kind, it would have been, had it been possible, more satisfactory to have confined its references to pedigrees presumably true. It is not asserting too much to say that most pedigrees are to some extent false; nor is this to be wondered at when we consider that the object of their compilers is too often to gratify the vanity and flatter the pride of the ignorant and the purse-proud. The critical reader will be enabled, by consulting these references, to see almost at a glance how new men have been 'joined on' to old families, and how frequently one author has copied the errors of another without having made the slightest attempt to verify his statements; or even had the honesty to acknowledge the sources whence the information he repeats has been derived.

It will be asked, and very properly, what kind of genealogy I have considered a pedigree of sufficient importance to be catalogued here. My answer is, that as a general rule, I have included any descent of three generations in male line. A pedigree, therefore, which sets forth the descendants of A in the families of B, C, and D, is referred to under such of the families of B, C, and D, as happen to have three generations in male line given in it; if there be only two and an heiress, it is not noticed. Exceptions to this rule are, however, frequent in references to works such as Peerages and Baronetages, my object being not so much to index every existing genealogy as to place the intelligent student in a position to find out the sources from which he may obtain a clue to the particular pedigree he is searching for. This observation also applies to the references given to 'Notes and Queries,' a new feature in this edition, and which in no degree pretend to supersede the necessity of consulting for purposes of genealogical reference the general indexes to that periodical. So far, indeed, as 'Notes and Queries' is concerned, reference is often made only to one or two out of many articles relating to a particular family; but it will be found sufficient to give those consulting the book a clue to further information, as the articles in that publication are headed by references to such as have previously appeared in it.

The titles of the works here indexed are given as briefly as is consistent with rendering them easy of identification. Where it occurred to me that a doubt might arise as to the book intended, I have added the place and date of publication in parentheses, and trust that the reader indifferently acquainted with genealogical and topographical literature will have no difficulty in finding the book he may require in any ordinary library catalogue.

Of late years it has become a custom to reprint genealogical articles from the publications of Archaeological Societies, and such like works. These, at first sight, appear to be independent family memoirs, and are calculated to mislead the unwary into the idea that they are privately-printed family histories of great rarity. Such 'pulls' have been carefully excluded from this guide, unless they contain additional matter to that given in the work in which their contents originally appeared.

When, as is frequently the case with county histories, a book has passed through more than one edition, reference is made to the best or most easily accessible edition. In consulting the following pages it is therefore necessary to bear in mind that references to Dugdale's Warwickshire	are to the 2nd Edition (Thomas's).

Chauncy's Hertfordshire	„ 1st „
Erdeswicke's Survey of Staffordshire	„ 3rd „
Whitaker's Deanery of Craven <sup>1</sup>	„ 1st „

Ormerod's Cheshire	„ 2nd „ (Helsby's).
Watson's History of Halifax	„ 1st „
Wotton's English Baronetage	„ „ of 1741.

The references to 'Glover's 'Derbyshire' are to the 4to edition, and the figures in parentheses refer to the 8vo edition.

Those portions of the publications of the Powys-land Club which have been re-issued as 'The History of Llangurig' and 'The Sheriffs of Montgomeryshire,' are referred to under those headings.

The references to 'Topographical Miscellanies,' 1792, 4to., of which work, edited by Sir E. Brydges, only one volume was issued, have the places under which pedigrees will be found in parentheses, there being no continuous pagination.

When a pedigree is on a folding table, the page which it faces is given. To some books no page is cited; in such cases it must be understood that they are not paged.

It should be remembered when consulting the references to Burke's 'History of the Commoners,' that the second and subsequent editions of that work bear the title 'Landed Gentry.' In these the pedigrees (except in a few instances) being in alphabetical order, the page where a pedigree will be found is not given, the number appended being that of the edition in which it is contained. When, as often happens, more than one family of the same name occurs, its place of residence is given in parentheses, a plan necessary to avoid confusion, and to show that more than one genealogy will be found in the edition referred to. The abbreviation add. = addenda; supp. = supplement; corr. = corrigenda. To the fifth edition there are two supplements. The sixth edition was re-issued in 1882, with an amended supplement.

References to Burke's 'Extinct Baronetcies' are added to this edition; this work contains a large number of pedigrees not to be found elsewhere. These pedigrees being in alphabetical order, no page is given; but to those of Baronets of Ireland and Scotland, and descents which are subsidiary to others, the page has been added in order to render them easily found.

The words 'Caermarthenshire Pedigrees,' 'Cardiganshire Pedigrees,' and 'Pembrokeshire Pedigrees,' refer to a book entitled 'Pedigrees of Caermarthenshire, Cardiganshire, and Pembrokeshire, in continuation of Lewis Dwnn, to about the years 1700-10. From the MS. of John Philipps Allen Lloyd Philipps, Esq., of Dale Castle, co. Pembroke. Typis Medii Montanis, 1859.' Fol. Privately printed by Sir Thomas Phillipps, Bart. Sir Thomas Phillipps printed a considerable number of pedigrees on separate sheets, many of them signed with his initials and sometimes the date of the year when printed, thus—T. P., 1870. I have marked all those I know with the initials T. P., and the date when given. An extensive collection of them will be found in the Bodleian Library, from which most of my references are taken.

As a general rule, the surname of a family is the heading under which its genealogy should be sought; but to this one exception is frequently made, viz., where there is a peerage title.

In searching therefore for titled families, it is necessary to look both under the surname and also under the title, reference being unavoidably made now to the one and again to the other. When a family has a double surname the references to both names should be consulted. It must also be borne in mind that many names are spelt in several different ways, so that it is necessary to look under all the various ways in which any name can be spelt. Cross references have been added to assist the reader, especially to such as are not familiar to those who are unaccustomed to genealogical researches.

To have given references in this work to the pedigrees contained in all the Peerages and Baronetages which have been published during the last two hundred years, would have increased its cost and size without being a proportionate aid to the reader. But in this edition references to the most important Peerages and Baronetages, e.g. Dugdale's 'Baronage,' Brydges' 'Collins,' Edmondson's 'Baronagium Genealogicum,' etc., etc., have been added. Lists of the principal works of this class will be found in Mr. Richard Sims's 'Manual for the Genealogist,' a book so well known as to render it unnecessary to repeat them here. Peerages of England at p. 180, Scotland at p. 187, and Ireland at p. 188. There is also a list of Royal Genealogies at p. 178. Since my first edition was issued the Index Society has published (vol. v.) 'An Index of Hereditary English, Scottish, and Irish Titles of Honour,' by Edward Solly, F.R.S., F.S.A., a valuable work, and indispensable to every genealogical inquirer who wishes to make a complete search in reference to any name one of whose bearers has been raised to the dignity of a Peer or Baronet.

Private Acts of Parliament frequently contain much genealogical information; a collection in thirty-nine folio volumes is in the Guildhall Library, with MS. pedigrees by Sir George Naylor.

The numbers of the Session Papers, printed by order of the House of Lords, which are given as references to the evidence taken on claims to Peerages and to vote at the elections of Irish Peers, refer to the number at the bottom of each paper. The volume in which the paper will be found can be ascertained by referring to the General Indexes to the Sessional Papers. Though these give the page as well as the volume, it would be useless here to refer to the page, because it is the MS. page of the copy arranged for the library of the House of Lords, and not the page at which the particular paper inquired for would be found. An explanatory note to this effect will be seen at the commencement of the General Indexes.

Mention of other works of the same kind as this may not be considered out of place. Sims's 'Index to the Herald's Visitations' is a useful guide to the MS. collections in the British Museum, though inaccurate and incomplete. The 'Heraldic Calendar,' by William Skey, published in 1846, gives a list of pedigrees and arms recorded in Ulster's Office at Dublin Castle. Whitmore's 'Handbook of American Genealogy' contains much information relative to the pedigrees of English families whose descendants have settled in America; it reached a third edition in 1875. Durrie's 'Alphabetical Index to American Genealogies,' (2nd Edition, Albany, U.S.A., 1878,) gives references to the pedigrees in books published in America, and may frequently be consulted with advantage by English readers. There is a useful list of claims to Scottish Peerages, from 1788-1838, in the 'Gentleman's Magazine' for April, 1839. A catalogue of foreign genealogies will be found in Moule's 'Bibliotheca Heraldica,' pp. 619-648. 'L'Art de vérifier les Généalogies des Familles Belges et Hollandaises,' par J. Huytens (Brussels, 1865, 8vo.), is a work similar to several of those already mentioned.

In inquiries of a genealogical nature, biographical memoirs should not be overlooked, as they often supply information of great value. Phillips's 'Dictionary of Biographical Reference' is an index to the best-known biographical dictionaries.

In deference to the wishes of many persons who have told me that they have derived advantage from this book, I give a list of the volumes issued by the Harleian Society explanatory of their contents:—

 „ xviii. The Visitation of Cheshire, 1580.

It should also be added that Surtees Soc., vol. xli., is Tonge's Visitation of the Northern Counties, and vol. xxxvi. Dugdale's Visitation of Yorkshire in 1665-6. Camden Soc., vol. xliii., is the Visitation of Huntingdon, 1613. The Visitations of Lancashire, 1533, 1567, 1613, and 1664-5, will be found in the vols. of the Chetham Soc., lxxxi., lxxxii., lxxxiv., lxxxv., lxxxviii., xeviii., and cx.

'The Scottish Nation,' by William Anderson, Edinburgh, 1863, 8vo., three vols., though professedly a biographical dictionary, contains extensive pedigrees of many Scottish families, and should be referred to by those seeking information as to their genealogy.

An index, embracing as this does the pedigrees contained in every important genealogical and topographical work, as well as those in many of minor importance, is certain to contain some errors both of omission and commission. For such I crave indulgence, and, to use the expression of an old heraldic writer, 'All errors and mistakings as shall fall out, I intreat the Learned-modest Reader to correct with his Pen.'

Lastly, it is a pleasant duty to render thanks to R. R. Stodart, Esq., Lyon Depute, Michael J. Shaw Stewart, Esq., the Rev. W. G. Dimock Fletcher, M.A., and to many of my correspondents, for the valuable assistance they have given in the preparation of this edition, which will, I trust, be found much more complete than the former, and prove serviceable to all interested in genealogical investigations.
